

MILES OF BRIDGES BUILT BY THIS MAN

John Burk Operating Out of El Paso—Pauses to Tell of Plant Juice.

John Burk who has lived in El Paso for twenty years, and is known all over Texas as a builder of bridges, has been connected with the Bridge Building Department of the Southern Pacific Railroad for twenty years. Mr. Burk made the following statement:

"For the past two years I have lost a great deal of time on account of my health. I have suffered for years with stomach and kidney troubles, my liver was sluggish and I was constipated. I would blot after meals and what little I could eat would do me no good. My kidneys were so bad I had to get up almost every hour during the night. I have taken Plant Juice for ten days. I sleep well, my stomach does not bloat any more and I can digest what I eat. Plant Juice is building me up and I feel better than I have for years. Any man who has to work for a living will understand how I feel after trying so many things that failed to find one that does all that is claimed for it."

Plant Juice cures cases like this because it is a solvent of uric acid. Uric acid tears down nerve forces and weakens the whole system. Plant Juice represents the best combination known of the juices of medicinal plants and herbs and is a specific for blood, liver and kidney ailments. Get a bottle of the special Plant Juice man at McIntyre's Drug Store. Your money back if it does not help you.

SENTENCED TO TWENTY-FIVE DAYS

John Anderson, who told such a pitiful story in police court Saturday morning, was given a sentence of 25 days. The man was examined by the city physician and was in need of treatment. While serving his sentence he can have his injuries attended to in a proper way.

Loose Mong, the Chinese "hop" seller, forfeited his bail of $100. It is possible that he will be prosecuted by the federal authorities. The Chinese man has been arrested for the illegal sale of opium several times.

St. Thompson, charged with drunkenness, was given five days on the rock pile.

DENVER SHOOT FAILED TO PLEASE

Moroni Skeen, W. H. Anderson and George and T. S. Browning have returned from the Denver trap shooting tournament, not very well pleased with the affair.

The Ogden men say that while they did reasonably good shooting and succeeded in winning some of the contests, the tournament was unsatisfactory in more than one feature. In the first place, they say, the Utah men were all handicapped because of the manner in which the traps were operated. The bluecoats were thrown slowly, which made it possible for nearly all the shooters, especially the eastern men, to make a high score, and, secondly, because there was not enough money offered the winners in the various events to justify one in shooting. First money in some instances was less than the entrance fee and one had to break almost every rock to win.

Messrs. Skeen and Anderson say that the shooting at the rocks in the tournament ranged about 92 per cent in nearly all the events, the eastern shooters being given the advantage of slow traps. Mr. Skeen shot as high as 91 birds out of a possible hundred and this was below the high men Anderson in the double broke 84 of 100 and yet he was fourth man. The western men have been accustomed to shooting at marks from speedy traps, the result being that in Denver they were always shooting ahead of the birds. A little practice at the slow ones, the Ogden men say, and they could break nearly every rock spring.

The Brownings also did good average shooting, but were handicapped the same as the other Utah men.

Mr. Anderson states that six inches of snow was encountered over the high passes on the Denver & Rio Grande road on the way home and on Saturday morning it was snowing in Denver. Mr. Anderson and Commissioner T. S. Browning returned home over the Rio Grande, while Mr. Skeen, accompanied by his wife, returned over the Union Pacific. George Browning went east from Denver.

EXCURSION TO PROMONTORY

The excursion to Promontory Point yesterday was attended by 275 people. The train left the Union depot at 9 o'clock and was in charge of prominent railroad officials, among whom were Assistant Superintendents W. H. Wintner and O. B. Chalmers. Paul Beemer of the up-town ticket office and his assistant, Charles Warren, were along and did their best in entertaining the party.

It was intended that the train should go as far as Saline and then return to the point, but instead it went to Colon and then back to Promontory Point. Here all went down to the beach where the bathing resort will be located, if built. The returning train left there at 1 o'clock.

Dr. H. M. Rowe, A. P. Bigelow, O. J. Stillwell, David Eccles and other prominent members of the Weber club were with the crowd.

The excursion is a reminder of the one boosted by the Standard six years ago, when over 5,000 persons went to Promontory Point and the railroad was taxed to the utmost to handle the great crowd. The money obtained was to refund the Weber club rooms.

AEROPLANES CRASH IN AIR

Howard Gill Dies in Aerial Collision at Chicago Meet.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Colliding in midair with a swiftly moving aeroplane driven by Georges Mentache, Howard Gill, one of the most brilliant aviators of the Wright force, was driven to the ground this afternoon at the Cicero field and so terribly crashed that he died on the way to the hospital. By marvelous quick wit Mentache depressed the head of his machine, and through he crashed to ground a second or two later he escaped with severe cuts and bruises on his face and head. Suffering more from shock than his bodily injuries he was taken to the same hospital as Gill.

The accident occurred just at the close of a day of brilliant and exciting flying and it fulfilled a foreboding that had haunted Gill for months.

Only two days ago, after having been forced to make a quick descent by reason of a high wind combined with engine trouble, Gill remarked: "I'm beginning to be afraid. If I live through this meet I am going to cut out aviation forever."

CHALLENGED BY ALUMNI TEAM

The football stars of the Ogden High school Alumni association did not wait to be challenged by the High school team this year, but went ahead and did the challenging themselves. There are about thirty football men in Ogden who have graduated from the Ogden High school who wish to show the present High school team how the strenuous game should be played. The boys from the High school, however, say that the alumni will receive so severe a drubbing that several business houses in Ogden will be putting on substitutes to fill the places of the crippled alumni huskies.

Wade Johnson will coach the old-timers and he has had so much football experience that his men will be held tonight. There are two men for each position on the team, among whom are such stars as Harcomb, Woodcock, Horn, Reberg, "Griz" Greenwell, Tribe, Evans, the two Campbells, the two Glasmanns, Morrissey and "Sol" Smyth. With such men as these, the High school will not have a look-in, it is claimed.

A meeting of the old stars will be held tonight and the first practice will be after the business in hand is completed. The trouble during preceding years has been the failure of the alumni team to get sufficient practice. This year the members of the squad have agreed that no private business shall interfere with their training. It is probable that the game will be played at Glenwood on September 25.

MEETING IS A GREAT BIG FIZZLE

Declaring that Theodore Roosevelt was a deliberate liar, John M. Harlan of Illinois and former Congressman J. Adam Bede of Minnesota addressed not more than 100 people in the Orpheum theater, Saturday night. A band played in front of the theater for a full hour and at the end of that time not one-fourth of the seats in the lower part of the Orpheum were occupied.

These men are supposed to be the greatest orators the Republican party can command and their mission is to trail after Roosevelt, hurling anathemas at the former president. George Halverson, formerly district attorney of this judicial district, presided as chairman of the meeting. He introduced John M. Harlan, son of the late Justice John M. Harlan of the supreme court, as the first speaker.

Harlan's whole talk was a reflection on the public and private life of Colonel Roosevelt. Here is a sample of Harlan's remarks:

In 1898, as soon as he returned from Cuba, he brushed his shoes, went to the Fifth Avenue hotel and respectfully knocked at the door of the office of Thomas C. Platt, then the absolute boss of Republican politics in New York state. He did not enter until he was told. He remained standing until he was told to be seated. Then he stretched forth his hand and asked for the Republican nomination for governor of New York. The Republican party was in a bad way in New York. It needed a man with a military record—a hero. The nomination was given to Roosevelt by Platt. He was billed as the hero of San Juan hill.

In the campaign Roosevelt made every speech attired in his colonel's uniform. At every political gathering at which he spoke he had four of his Rough Rider troopers in full uniform. With the halo of a hero about him, with all the glory of the triumph at San Juan hill, he was able to win only by the small majority in New York of 17,000 votes. A change of 9000 votes would have elected his opponent. We cannot doubt that if he had not been believed to have been the hero of San Juan hill, the man who led the charge up the hill and took the blockhouse, he never would have been elected.

While he campaigned through New York as the hero of San Juan hill he knew that he was not the hero. He was acting the lie. He was doing that despicable thing of profiting by the reward that should have been another's. Tucked away in an obscure corner of one of his books is his confession. There he admits that he did not participate in the charge up San Juan hill. He observed the battle from the brow of another hill, safely out of range, merely as an interested onlooker.

This is the same Roosevelt the Republicans afterward placed in the presidency twice. Notwithstanding they know, as Harlan claims, that Roosevelt was a sham hero.

J. Adam Bede, who is a former congressman by virtue of the people ruling of late in his state of Minnesota, was next presented. His part is to poke ridicule and say funny things.

The burden of his talk, when he was not abusing Roosevelt, was, "Standpat! There are big problems, of course, but give us time; we Republicans will solve them. People continue to eke out an existence in this country and they should let well enough alone."

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

GOWANS—Hugh Gowans, father of Dr. E. G. Gowans, superintendent of the Utah Industrial school, was buried in Tooele yesterday following impressive funeral services at which many pioneers of the state were present. Mr. Gowans was born in Scotland, eighty years ago, emigrating to Utah with the early pioneers of the state and spending nearly all his life in Tooele county.

SWENSON—Mrs. Johanna Sophia Swenson succumbed to heart and liver trouble last night at the home, rear 252 Twenty-second street. Mrs. Swenson was born June 24, 1845, in Sweden, came to Ogden three years ago with her daughter, Anna Sophia, to make her home.

LESSON FROM THE LIFE OF CHRIST

The First Presbyterian church was a scene of beauty yesterday. The platform was richly decorated with a very large number of flowers. The wind had destroyed most of the smaller flowers, but the children and friends brought many great bouquets of red and blue asters and smaller bouquets of such smaller flowers as the storm had spared, and the general effect was most beautiful. The special music for the morning consisted of a chorus rendered by the primary and one by the intermediate departments of the Sunday school.

Miss Abbot a guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Abbot, sang at the evening service. Miss Abbot is a soloist in the leading Presbyterian church of Chicago and her singing was a rare musical treat thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Rev. Carver said in part: "Fascination of the new has ever been one of the potent factors in human progress and a hindrance to stability. The new custom, the new pleasure, the new leader and teaching as well as the new style has

W. H. ST. JAMES AND PLAYERS

In the Comedy Playlet, "A Chip of the Old Block."

"A Chip of the Old Block" is by Byron Oxley, author of "Brewster's Millions" and co-author of "The Typhoon." It is a comedy of wit, color and sentiment with a delicate contrast of characters. The story is simple and well told. Briefly it is just what the name implies, the delight of a father at his son's development in the ways of his father. Mr. St. James is supported by four capable players.

WILLIAM DAPHNE BURR & HOPE

"A Lady, a Lover and a Lamp"

At the rise of the curtain, in their artistic novelty, "A Lady, a Lover and a Lamp," they are seen under the glow of a big lamp. They discuss in song and bright dialogue the sort of love that each pictures as ideal. The man is humorous, but the lady earnestly sings of the tender passion. The theme they choose is inescapable, but they have displayed fine taste and skill in selecting the material that has made them prime favorites with the crowds at the English Music Hall. They feature their latest song success "Into Dreamland."

FLEURETTE IN VISIONS D'ART

Jesse L. Lisk's Artistic Novelty

"Vision D'Art," Jesse L. Lisk's most recent novelty in which Fleurette, an unusually attractive bit of femininity assumes various classic poses, is decidedly artistic. Fleurette, an unusually attractive and her poses are excellent. On each of the series of human pictures are shown various electrical effects. The device is so contrived as to produce any number of beautiful effects. Visions D'Art is away from the beaten path in posing acts and carries with it a new idea developed in an artistic manner.

MARTIN JOHNSON'S TRAVELOGS

Wonderful Stories and Pictures of Savage Life in the South Sea Islands.

Martin Johnson's Wonderful South Sea Islands Travelogue is intensely interesting and highly instructive. Mr. Johnson was the only man who left San Francisco with Jack London on his famous little 45-foot yacht "Snark" that remained on the complete voyage from beginning to end, spending two and a half years among the South Pacific islands, constantly looking for wild, uncivilized people and making photographic records of the least known and most interesting people on the face of the earth. This travelogue opens up a world of information about savages it is hard to believe exist did not Mr. Johnson prove everything he says with the aid of a most wonderful collection of pictures. Mr. Johnson has made a business of the wanderlust.

KATHI GULTINI

Famous as "The Lady Juggler"

Kathi is a pretty, vivacious little Viennese. She does most remarkable tricks of juggling with a daintiness and finesse that has never been acquired by any male juggler. She has marked originality and by her cleverness and pleasing personality has gained a foremost place in the European Music Halls from which she comes direct to the Orpheum circuit.

LAVIER

"Dauntless Doings Aloft"

La Vier is one of the most daring trapeze performers before the public. Many of his aerial feats border on the sensational. His routine is quick and snappy but at the same time neat, and accomplished with apparent ease. There is a newness about everything he undertakes, making the performance interesting as well as attractive.

ever held the first call in the most of human lives. It is owing to this that so many hands have dropped the old tools for the new and that so many minds have given up the old beliefs for the latest trends of thought. In the long run this has meant everything for the race's development. In the first centuries it made the new religion of Christ possible, as it has its each new advance from then until now. The new styles of clothing and head wear are now coming in for the fall and winter. The readiness with which men and women adopt them, the new for the old, speaks of that human trait that has made development a reality.

"Like all fundamental trends and characteristics of the human race, this has its loss as well as its gain. Much of the old had better be retained, not only because it is true, better and more helpful, but also because we discard much that has never been completely tried. In religious life this is a fact clearly known. That which is well known and universal is too commonplace for deep regard. Thus it is that great deep everyday realities of spiritual life, like the ever present God, the ever possible fellowship with Jesus Christ, the voice within that monitors for our own guidance which the world calls conscience, but which we know as the voice of God, the bible as a chart of conduct, the Sabbath as a day of worship, these are the old trends and riches, readily given up for newer and more alluring goals and standards."

"We read that when Jesus Christ returned to Nazareth, his home town, and taught in the synagogue, he received scant attention. The people who had known him for years only said: 'From whence hath this man these things?' And what wisdom is this which is given unto him that even such mighty works are wrought by his hands? Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary, the brother of James and Joseph and of Juda and Simon? And are not his sisters here with us?' And they were offended at him. But Jesus said unto them, 'A prophet is not without honor, but in his own country, and among his own kin, and in his own house,' and he marveled because of their unbelief. They longed for some newer personage. Jesus Christ, the world's best character, had lived so perfectly and quietly among them that he and his message were commonplace. They were like those who would despise new water if it was served in familiar vessels.

"In a country like that wherein Christ lived, the carpenter would fill a honorable but humble place. Most of his time would be spent in work of small magnitude, the making of household implements and utensils. Not unlikely the bushel, lamp, plough, table and couch of which Christ spoke in illustrations has been often obscurely made or repaired by his hand."

"The humble home has ever been the best of schools, not because it is humble, but because of the interplay of responsibility, sympathy and love there most often found. Easy is it indeed to name many of note who have come from homes that the world calls lowly. Euripides, the son of a marriage license and entered into a pre-nuptial agreement that "marriage should not be a drag on either," were married here today at the groom's home, after considerable difficulty.

The groom, who is 25 years old, and the bride, 21, had known each other on a vacation when they obtained their marriage license and formed their contract.

They requested Judge Robert W. McDowell of Pasadena to perform their marriage ceremony yesterday, but he refused on the ground that he thought the agreement practically nullified the institution of marriage.

The couple then sent to Alhambra for Judge W. M. Northrup, who came here and performed the ceremony after asking only one question as to whether any legal obstacle prevented their union.

The pre-nuptial agreement sets forth, among other things, that the marriage shall not be understood to give either party to it control or possession of the other; that it shall not be a bar to other marriages should this one prove unfruitful; that the tie shall terminate with the death of love on either side and that neither shall restrain the other if he or she shall see fit to incur parental responsibility.

In case of separation financial responsibility shall continue to be divided.

Hatpin Caused Death.

A simple hatpin caused the death of a woman in Paris the other morning near the Alma Bridge. A young woman slipped as she alighted from a tramcar and fell. The hatpin was dislodged, and by some extraordinary chance was driven right through the unlucky woman's scalp. Death was instantaneous.
